ABOUT AUSTIN GIRLS' CHOIR . . .

This top-level performing choir for girls age 8-18 was founded in 1990 by Artistic Director Sara Burden-McClure. The group performs frequently for state events, parades, conventions and festivals, as well as its own concerts and tours. AGC has been featured on CNN, C-SPAN and BBC Radio, and many television newscasts. A 2008 concert tour included singing for President Bush at the White House and singing Evensong at the Washington National Cathedral. Past local collaborative performances range from artists Bob Schneider and Joe McDermott to Austin Symphony Orchestra and the American Boychoir. The Choir is widely regarded as one of North America's top treble choirs.

What's in it for the singers?

Austin Girls' Choir choristers share a strong love for music and music-making, and enjoy the opportunity to learn challenging works in a mutually supportive, high-standard environment. The girls develop musical skills, personal responsibility, self-discipline and performance poise as they learn to function as part of a team and to value one another. They take pleasure and pride in achieving new skill levels, mastering difficult works, and sharing their accomplishments with appreciative audiences. The girls sing in several languages, learn about other cultures, and love the fun rewards of local concerts and June concert tours. AGC has toured all over the US and Europe; we fundraise to help defray expenses, and participants bear the remainder of the cost.

Do you have camps?

Yes! Our general camp (all levels, age 8-15) is June 6-10, and our tour-focused camp is June 13-17 (advanced singers, age 10-17).
